

GENERAL RETENTION AND DISPOSAL SCHEDULE (GRDS)

An authorisation under s.20 of the Public Records Act 2023 for the disposal of common and administrative public records created by all public authorities.

Where printed, this reproduction is only accurate at the time of printing.
Please refer to the Queensland Government \(For Government\) website for the current, authorised version.

Using this schedule

The General retention and disposal schedule (GRDS) authorises the disposal of common and administrative records created by all Queensland Government agencies. It applies to records created in any format, unless otherwise specified in the class description. The schedule also includes transitory and short term records that are created as part of routine transactional business practices and are only required to be kept for a short period of time. Classes within the GRDS can be combined with classes from the GRDS Lite.

The GRDS should be used in conjunction with an agency's core business or sector schedule. Disposal authorisations in the Common activities section can be applied to any function undertaken by the agency, provided the retention period meets all of the agency's specific regulatory requirements and there are no exclusions listed.

Any references to repealed legislation may be taken as a reference to current legislation if the context permits.

This schedule will regularly be amended with the addition of new classes or changes to class descriptions or disposal actions. Agencies will be notified of any changes and the information will also be published on the Recordkeeping section of the Queensland Government \(For Government\) website. Always refer to the website for the most recent version of this schedule.

Any previously authorised retention and disposal schedule covering disposal authorisations described in this schedule is now superseded and previous versions should be removed from use. It is the agency's responsibility to maintain the current approved schedule within their business practices and systems.

Records relating to vulnerable persons

When your agency's core schedule and the GRDS are in conflict, the longest retention period should be used to ensure maximum protection to the record. For example, if records relating to vulnerable persons incidents are required to be kept for 120 years under your agency's core business or sector schedule, then that disposal authorisation takes precedence. Conversely if you have relevant records in your agency schedule that have a lower retention requirement than the GRDS disposal authorisations, then the GRDS disposal authorisations take precedence.

Records not relating to vulnerable persons

Where any other disposal action in this schedule is inconsistent with a disposal action approved in an agency's core business or sector schedule, the core business or sector schedule takes precedence (provided that the schedule is current and up-to-date).

When this schedule should not be used

It is an offence under the Criminal Code Act 1899 (s.129) 'for a person, who knowing something is or may be needed in evidence in a judicial proceeding, damages it with intent to stop it being used in evidence'. A duty of care exists for agencies to ensure records that may be needed in evidence in a judicial proceeding, including any legal action or a Commission of Inquiry, are not disposed of. Internal processes should be implemented to meet this obligation, which may include consultation with your legal or Right to Information area or issuing an internal records disposal freeze if it is reasonably expected that a judicial proceeding may occur e.g. retaining property files that may contain information on the use of asbestos in buildings.

Records which are subject to a request for access under the Right to Information Act 2009, the Information Privacy Act 2009 or any other relevant Act must not be destroyed until the action, and any applicable appeal period, has been completed.

Schedule layout

A Common Activities section has been introduced which combines activities used in multiple functions into a single section at the beginning of the schedule. This section provides the broadest possible disposal coverage of records which are common across the Queensland government and removes inconsistencies that arise when all the common activities are listed under many individual functions and schedules. The 12 remaining schedule functions, containing disposal authorisations which are specific to each function, then follow on in alphabetical order.

Transitory and short term records are included in the schedule. These records are not required to support the ongoing business functions of an agency and have little or no value to the agency or community. Examples of transitory and short term records are provided within this schedule, but this list is not exhaustive, and agencies are free to customise their own list of example records.

Each class has been allocated a disposal authorisation number to aid with the disposal of records. Further implementation information is available on the Queensland Government \(For Government\) website.

Records with Archival, Enduring or Intrinsic Value

Public records provide evidence of the decisions and actions of Queensland public authorities and support transparent and accountable government. Queensland State Archives aims to retain and preserve public records that have significant value for Queenslanders.

Archival or Enduring Value

A record of enduring value must be identified and retained in a usable form, regardless of whether the records are in the custody of QSA or an agency.

Archival/Enduring value means: the ongoing usefulness or significance of records, based on the evidential, administrative, financial, legal, informational and historical values that justify the permanent retention of records. These records have enduring value to the state of Queensland, the relevant agency, the community, and/or Australia as a whole and therefore need to be kept indefinitely. Under disposal authorisations authorised by the State Archivist, records of enduring value have the status of permanent and are transferred to QSA once business use has ceased.

For further information on the values guiding the appraisal and identification of permanent public records, refer to the Appraisal Statement on the Queensland State Archives website.

Intrinsic Value

Before disposal, it is necessary to consider if a record has intrinsic value. If the record is deemed to have intrinsic value, the records cannot be destroyed. Intrinsic value refers to the special qualities and characteristics of the original medium that contribute to the record's significance. The characteristics that make the record special could be lost or diminished if the physical source record is destroyed and only the content is retained.

Intrinsic value may include:

- Records of significant aesthetic or format based value e.g. artwork or hand written ledger from previous centuries with examples of lost handwriting styles
- Records of utmost personal significance to the subject of the record e.g. handwritten letters within an adoption file
- Records of historical significance e.g. original proclamations

- Records relating to a significant person or place e.g. a document signed by a prime minister
- Surviving records of a significant event/disaster/incident which saw the disposal of records
- Records with special qualities and characteristics that could be lost or diminished if the original source record is digitised, converted or migrated into another medium

The intrinsic value of a record may be separate from its information value and the intrinsic value may be lost or diminished if replaced by a copy. A record of intrinsic value may have either the status of permanent or temporary under a disposal authorisation issued by the State Archivist.

Disposal

This Schedule provides authorisation by the Queensland State Archivist for the disposal of public records as required under s.20 of the Public Records Act 2023. No further notification to Queensland State Archives about the lawful disposal of public records by your public authority is required. Approval from the Chief Executive, or their authorised delegate, of your public authority is required prior to the lawful disposal of public records.

Disposal must also be appropriately documented in accordance with any mandatory standards issued by the Queensland State Archivist, and must have regard to any policies (e.g. Records governance policy) issued by the Queensland State Archivist, and may have regard to any guidelines issued by the Queensland State Archivist.

Any disposal of public records without authorisation from the Queensland State Archivist may be a breach of s.23 of the Public Records Act 2023.

How we can help?

More information on implementing schedules is available on the Recordkeeping section of the Queensland Government \(For Government\) website. Any enquiries about this schedule or recordkeeping should be directed in the first instance to your records manager. If further information is required, please contact Queensland State Archives on (07) 3037 6630 or via the Queensland Government \(For Government\) website.

COMMON ACTIVITIES

Records of activities common to many government agencies. Each common disposal authorisation from this section can be combined with any function undertaken by an agency, except where an exemption is indicated.

Note: If an agency is unsure as to whether any classes can be used to sentence core business records, please contact QSA for further assistance.

This function should be used in conjunction with the Proactive Protection of Vulnerable Persons-Relevant Records activity in the GRDS. For any records relating to vulnerable persons, these disposal authorisations should apply unless existing minimum retention periods in another GRDS activity or function are greater than, or equal to, those specified in the Proactive Protection of Vulnerable Persons-Relevant Records activity.

PROACTIVE PROTECTION OF VULNERABLE PERSONS – RELEVANT RECORDS

Public authorities must ensure complete and reliable records are created to document all aspects of incidents, allegations, disclosures and investigations related to the proactive protection of vulnerable persons. These records must be created, properly managed, protected and retained over time. Activities may include documenting suspicions, documenting reportable conduct¹, complaints handling, incident management, investigations, enforcement, referrals to counselling, and compensation.

Public authorities must also properly manage, protect and retain over time evidence of interactions with vulnerable persons which may be relevant to current and future incidents, allegations, disclosures, or investigations of abuse.

Records documenting interactions may establish the whereabouts of an alleged perpetrator or vulnerable person within a particular timeframe. These records may be able to establish the likelihood of a perpetrator having an interaction with a vulnerable person. Contact can include physical contact, face to face contact, oral communication, written communication, or electronic communication.

Risk assessment

A risk assessment can be used to determine records to be created and retained in circumstances where there is a higher risk of abuse occurring due to the nature of the interaction/s. Public authorities need to carefully consider the sorts of records which may provide evidence of these types of interactions with vulnerable persons. See the Guideline on creating and keeping records for the proactive protection of vulnerable persons for guidance on identifying and managing records which may be evidence of interactions between the public authority and a vulnerable person.

Key terms

Vulnerable Persons:

- a) a Child or Children; or
- b) an individual aged 18 years and above who is or may be unable to take care of themselves or is unable to protect themselves against harm or exploitation by reason of age, illness, trauma or disability, or any other reason².

Abuse

There are multiple forms of abuse including, but not limited to, child sexual abuse, sexual abuse, physical abuse, psychological abuse perpetrated in connection with sexual abuse or serious physical abuse, emotional abuse, elder abuse, financial abuse. Public authorities must refer to the appropriate entity for relevant definitions. For example:

Child sexual abuse – an appropriate definition may be sourced from:

- the *RCIRCSA*³
- Civil Liability and Other Legislation Amendment Act 2019 (CLOLA)

People with disability – an appropriate definition may be sourced from the *Royal Commission into Violence, Abuse, Neglect and Exploitation of People with Disability*⁴.

Elder abuse – an appropriate definition may be sourced from the World Health Organization, The Toronto Declaration on the Global Prevention of Elder Abuse.⁵

National Redress Scheme

Disposal Authorisation	Description of records	Retention period & trigger	Date authorised
Records covered by this authorisation are not records of applications to the National Redress Scheme. Separate guidance regarding records of redress schemes will be developed in the future. For further information about the current redress scheme for people who have experienced institutionalised child sexual abuse please see www.nationalredress.gov.au
INCIDENTS, ALLEGATIONS, DISCLOSURES AND INVESTIGATIONS OF ABUSE – VULNERABLE PERSONS To protect a person’s legal rights and entitlements, public authorities have a legal and moral responsibility to maintain records which may provide evidence for any incidents, allegations, disclosures and investigations relevant to the proactive protection of vulnerable persons. Public authorities should ensure that records are created, maintained, secure, uncompromised and available for access for the full retention period.
1558	Incidents, allegations, disclosures and investigations of abuse – vulnerable persons Records relating to the proactive protection of vulnerable persons including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • allegations of abuse • disclosure of abuse • incidents of abuse • investigations of abuse Includes records that may not document a criminal offence but may require further investigation to ensure inappropriate behaviour towards vulnerable persons is not occurring.	100 years after creation of record.	27 March 2020

¹ The establishment of a reportable conduct scheme is a priority for Queensland. Institutions need to be accountable for the way they protect children and investigate allegations of harm and a nationally consistent reportable conduct scheme in Queensland will ensure appropriate oversight of institutional responses. <https://www.dcssds.qld.gov.au/about-us/reviews-inquiries/queensland-government-response-royal-commission-institutional-responses-child-sexual-abuse>

WORKFORCE MANAGEMENT

Hiring and developing employees so that they become more valuable to the agency. An employee is someone directly employed by the agency including permanent, temporary, casual and part-time employees and people working under scholarships, traineeships and apprenticeships.

See COMMON ACTIVITIES – Planning for records relating to workforce management plans.

See FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT – Payroll for records relating to the payment of wages and salaries to employees.

See TRANSITORY AND SHORT TERM – Routine Communication for records relating to employee suggestions.

This function should be used in conjunction with the Proactive Protection of Vulnerable Persons-Relevant Records activity in the GRDS. For any records relating to vulnerable persons, these disposal authorisations should apply unless existing minimum retention periods in another GRDS activity or function are greater than, or equal to, those specified in the Proactive Protection of Vulnerable Persons-Relevant Records activity.

TRANSITORY AND SHORT TERM

Transitory and short term records are created as part of routine transactional business practices and are only required to be kept for a short period of time. Agencies remain responsible for:

- determining their specific legal obligations for the retention of records relating to their business activities. Where a disposal requirement under this schedule does not meet an agency's specific regulatory requirement, please refer to your agency's core business or sector schedule
- ensuring records being disposed of are covered by the disposal authorisations and not listed in the specific exclusions provided in each disposal authorisation
- determining when 'business use ceases' within its context (i.e. this is when any business, accountability, community or cultural requirements have ceased, or were never evident)
- before destroying records, identifying those records that may be required for longer, including where:
 - they are or may be required for judicial and litigation proceedings, Commissions of Inquiry, or legal action, whether or not the State is a party to that litigation
 - there is any other law or policy requiring the records be retained, for example, a current disposal freeze or retained in accordance with the Evidence Act 1977 and the Criminal Code Act 1899.

Transitory and short term records described in this schedule do not require formal destruction documentation as per the Records governance policy (RGP). Depending on your business requirements, they also do not need to be formally captured into an agency's recordkeeping solution (e.g. eDRMS, business application with appropriate recordkeeping functionality). If an agency chooses to capture these records as part of a recordkeeping solution, and wishes to cite the formal authorisation, then the disposal authorisation number is sufficient.

This function should be used in conjunction with the Proactive Protection of Vulnerable Persons-Relevant Records activity in the GRDS. For any records relating to vulnerable persons, these disposal authorisations should apply unless existing minimum retention periods in another GRDS activity or function are greater than, or equal to, those specified in the Proactive Protection of Vulnerable Persons-Relevant Records activity.
