Introduction

Purpose

This Glossary of Terms establishes a common language for planning, measuring and monitoring performance and public reporting. It also captures terms used in risk management and evaluation.

Application

The glossary is relevant to all Queensland Government departments and statutory bodies.

In most cases, the term 'agency' is used in this glossary to refer to departments and statutory bodies. When necessary, an indication is made if specific sections apply to departments only or statutory bodies only.

Some definitions within the glossary have been taken from Queensland Treasury publications — A Guide to Risk Management and the Queensland Government Program Evaluation Guidelines. The designation of 'QT' (Guide to Risk Management) and 'QT1' (Evaluation Guidelines) identifies these definitions within the glossary of terms.

Further refinement of definitions of common terms will continue to occur. Agencies are encouraged to use the common terms consistently, for example, in published documents and internal conversations/communications.

Terms in dark grey text indicate that the term is defined in this Glossary.

Post-implementation evaluation is not disparate to monitoring or assurance. It is likely that monitoring of outputs, processes and outcomes or internal and external assurance functions could either constitute an evaluation or provide valuable input into an evaluation.
external driver	External drivers are factors outside of the government that are likely to influence it or impact on it in some way. These may include customer stakeholder and community expectations and opinions, political commitments and cross-jurisdictional commitments, financial and/or environmental considerations.
fiscal principles	The Government's commitment to maintaining a strong fiscal position for the State, and ensuring the State's asset base supports the current and future service delivery needs.
governance	Governance includes how an organisation is managed, its corporate and other structures, its culture, its policies and strategies and the way it deals with its various stakeholders. The concept encompasses the manner in which public sector organisations acquit their responsibilities of stewardship by being transparent, accountable and prudent in direction setting, decision making (including investment decision making), performance management, risk management and other compliance activities, in providing advice and in managing and delivering services, programs and projects. The Financial and Performance Management Standard 2009 (s.7) describes 'Governance' as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• incorporates the cultural and operational aspects of an agency that are influenced by its actions and decisions</li> <li>• includes the concepts of openness, integrity and accountability; due care; and public defensibility</li> <li>• incorporates the ethics principles for public officials under the Public Sector Ethics Act 1994, section 4</li> <li>• includes establishing a performance management system, a risk management system and an internal control structure.</li> </ul>

Achievement of government targets may require collaboration between multiple government agencies, business and the community. For example: 'one million rooftops or 3000 megawatts of solar photovoltaics (PV) in Queensland by 2020'.
government's objectives for the community	See objectives .
information	Any collection of data that is processed, analysed, interpreted, organised, classified or communicated in order to serve a useful purpose, present facts or represent knowledge in any medium or form. materiality	The threshold at which omission or misstatement of performance information could influence decision making.
measure	The act or process of gauging performance by ascertaining the extent, dimensions, quantity, etc., of something, especially by comparison with a standard. There are various types of measures employed by agencies to quantify their core business: Activity – measure the number of service instances, service recipients, or other activities for the service. They demonstrate the volume of work being undertaken. They are generally measures of busyness. While not generally demonstrating the achievement of service objectives, activity measures provide a basis for judging whether an agency is contributing to the desired social change of the service being delivered. For example, number of services provided, number of patients screened. Cost – cost of outputs/services produced (direct and/or fully absorbed). Ideally, the outputs are uniform and the cost per unit of output provides an obvious benchmark for measuring performance both over time and between like service providers. However, such uniformity is not always possible. For example, average cost of school per student, average cost of processing application. Equity – measures how well a service is meeting the needs of particular groups that have special needs or difficulties in accessing government services. For example, measures disaggregated by sex, disability status, ethnicity, income and so on. Equity measures focus on any gap in performance between special needs groups and the general population. Equity indicators may reflect equity of access – all Australians are expected to have appropriate access to services; and equity to outcome – all Australians are expected to achieve appropriate outcomes from service use (Report on Government Services, 2016, p 1.14). Input – measures the resources consumed in delivering a service, either as an absolute figure or as a percentage of total resources. Input measures demonstrate what it costs to deliver a service. Input measures can often be converted to efficiency measures by combining them with activity measures to show the unit cost of the activity. For example, number of inputs, resources, FTEs used to deliver a service. Location – measures relate to where the service is delivered. This is usually as a measure of access and equity for customers in rural remote or targeted locations. For example, percentage of customers in rural areas.

Process – measure throughput, or the means by which the agency delivers the service, rather than the service itself. They demonstrate how the agency delivers services, rather than how effectively services are delivered. For example, average time for screening service, compliance with medical protocols.

Quality – measures of whether service is fit for purpose, for example, extent to which outputs conform to specifications. Quality itself is one dimension of effectiveness, but does not necessarily fully represent how effective a service is (for example, a service could be high quality, but still not effective, and vice versa – a low quality service could be highly effective). The quality of a service can be measured in various ways – timeliness, accuracy, completeness, accessibility and equity of access, continuity of supply, and/or customer satisfaction. For example, average waiting time (accessibility), percentage population screened (market penetration), percentage of premises inspected and deemed complete and compliant.

Timeliness – relates to the time taken to produce an output and provide an indication of the processing or service speed. Measures of timeliness provide parameters for ‘how often’ or ‘within what time frame’ outputs are to be produced. For example, licences are supplied to clients within two working days.

The effects or impacts that an entity seeks to have on its customers, stakeholders and the community.

- agency objectives – should deliver the agency business direction and contribute to the whole-of-Government direction and, collectively, agencies’ objectives should deliver the whole-of-Government direction.
- Government’s objectives for the community – the effects and impacts that the Government wishes to have on the community. The Government is required to prepare and table a statement of the Government’s broad objectives for the community, including details of arrangements for regular reporting to the community about the outcomes the Government has achieved against these objectives for the community (Financial and Accountability Act 2009, section 10).

objectives for the community

See objectives

operational plan

Sets out how the agency plans to deliver its services over the relevant year. It also includes service standards and other measures that allow the agency to assess progress in delivering services in an effective and efficient manner to the standards as set out in the plan (Financial and Performance Management Standard 2009, section 9).

operational risk OT

Those risks that arise in day to day operations, and require specific and detailed response and monitoring regimes. If not treated and monitored, operational risks could potentially result in major adverse consequences for the agency.

outcome

- agency outcomes– those outcomes for which a single agency has direct influence and control on delivery.
- whole-of-Government outcomes–those on which a collaborative effort by several agencies must be exerted to achieve the desired result. While no single agency can control the outcome, lack of input from a single agency can affect the success of the resulting outcome.

output

Products delivered as part of a service.
